

Rocky Mountain Conference May Undergo Change

SPORTS WRITER IS HOST FOR NEW COLORADO GRID CONFERENCE FOR 1923

of This Nature Would Disrupt Grid Game Tend to Weaken Game; New Conference for Utah, Montana and Wyoming Teams Mentioned; Utah "U" to Stand Pat

BY AL WARDEN.

Rocky mountain conference, for many years considered one of the strongest of gridiron conferences in the United States, is being divided. That is the question that is being agitated pro and con. Under the proposed plan Utah schools are eliminated from competition with the big array of college Colorado.

Romney is quoted as being the originator of the plan. He is a sports writer and has been a member of the conference since its inception. He believes that the conference is being weakened by the inclusion of Utah schools, and that a new conference should be organized for 1923.

The proposed new conference would include the following schools: University of Utah, Utah Aggies, Brigham Young University, Colorado University, Colorado Aggies, Montana State, Wyoming University and New Mexico University.

Although this matter has not been given serious thought, it is being discussed in the Rocky Mountain conference, the present arrangements should remain intact. A change would be detrimental to all teams concerned. It is a mighty serious change and one that should be given considerable thought, with the fans that support the game, given some consideration.

Many believe that the present conference is too large. It is one of the largest in the country. The present conference consists of the following teams: University of Utah, Utah Aggies, Brigham Young University, Colorado University, Colorado Aggies, Montana State, Wyoming University and New Mexico University.

THE SPORTLIGHT by Grantland Rice

ton beat Harvard, Yale stopped Princeton and Harvard then beat Yale. No small part of Princeton's stronger showing against the Crimson is due undoubtedly to the better condition of the Tiger team for this game. Princeton is usually fresh and ready for Harvard. She is also usually fairly well battered and none too fresh against Yale, with the brief intervening rest in the same way, Yale is stronger against Princeton than she is against her ancient Cambridge foe, for much the same reason.

If Chicago had beaten Princeton 13 to 6 as the score stood in the fourth quarter, the blow might have been far more damaging than defeat, for that one game. But for a young team suddenly to find itself under heavy fire means quite another story. It means a Tiger team that will invade Cambridge with the hope of victory, one that will always remember that Chicago really won the odds are heavy the other way and so stick to the guns until the final shell is fired.

Princeton on Saturday will meet the strongest Harvard team that Nassau has tackled since 1914. But this has been a tough year in football for both the gods and the goddesses. Those who sit upon the throne are constantly feeling to see that their crowns are still on, and not hanging over the left ear. No one is safe against a team that can score a pass or two at some critical moment of battle. Ask Chicago—or Yale—or the Navy.

In spite of her Chicago triumph, Princeton still faces an uphill fight. The odds are still the Crimson way. But it will be a battle and Harvard will need her best to get by, for Princeton's line won't be outcharged and the Tiger attack is willing to take its share of chances.

U. S. NAVY EXPERTS WILL ASSIST BRAZIL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—Secretary Hughes and the Brazilian ambassador today signed the contract under the terms of which the United States will send a naval mission to Brazil.

The purpose of the mission, "the navy department of the United States," is to assist Brazil in the development of its naval service. In this task the mission will collaborate and work in conjunction with the officers of the Brazilian navy.

The mission will be composed of 14 officers and 10 chief petty officers under Rear Admiral Carl T. Vogelzang, who will head the mission. The personnel, it was said, will be selected within 48 hours and will sail for Rio de Janeiro on the Munson line steamer leaving New York December 9. The mission expects to be in Brazil about two years.

LARGE STILL FOUND.

IDAHO FALLS, Ida., Nov. 7.—A large still and 15 barrels of mash were found Sunday in the Henry creek section of Bligham county by state prohibition officers, according to word received here at the sheriff's office. No arrests have yet been made.

CRACK GOLFERS TO PLAY HERE HAGEN-KIRKWOOD TO PERFORM

HAGEN.

KIRKWOOD.

Walter Hagen, British open golf champion (left), driving and Joe Kirkwood, Australian champion, entertain with trick shots. They will entertain Ogdien golf lovers next Saturday.

Two of the world's greatest golfers will invade Ogdien next Saturday for a single performance, according to information given out today by W. Rice Kimball, chairman of the tournament committee at the Ogdien Golf and Country club. The time for the performance has not been set, but it will be announced during the week.

Walter Hagen, the first American golfer to win the British open championship, will be one of the players. Hagen is considered one of the world's greatest performers and will display his class before Ogdienites.

Joe Kirkwood, Australian champion and the world's greatest trick shot, is the other man.

Kirkwood does everything but make a golf ball talk and is also a brilliant performer at playing the game, while not in the mood for displaying his assortment of tricks.

A small gallery fee will be charged, the two players to take part for whatever they are capable of drawing through the gate.

Although no opponents have been selected as yet, it is probable that George "Gix" Von Elm and Leon Koller will oppose the stars in the 18-hole match.

SIKI'S LIFE STORY

BY BATTLING SIKI
As Told by Milton Bronner, NEA Staff Correspondent
CHAPTER THREE—Siki's Wartime Fighting

When the war broke out, I felt it up to me to do my duty as a French citizen. We of St. Louis, yes, we are citizens. We have the vote. We also have the duties.

I joined the Eighth Colonial at Toulouse. It was a regiment mainly made up of white men. There were only a few colored men. I perhaps was the only Senegalese.

My family did its duty. My four brothers also served and three were killed. I was in all the big early campaigns.

I got my only serious wound in the battles around the Somme in the summer of 1916. Bomb fragments went through both legs in the middle of the calf.

From the hospital, I went to Toulon for training and wound up as a corporal in the Seventy-third regiment of heavy artillery.

I was the champion hand grenade thrower of our corps while with the colonials. I could throw them 75 meters. It was exciting.

I stooped and used what the sporting writers now call my jungle crouch, went that way some distance toward the German line, then let them have the grenades. For some of that I got the croix de guerre and military medal.

But French service wasn't all fighting and danger. There was an English corps near ours in the Somme district. Those English always have sports when they do not work at war.

One day I got leave, went over to the English and asked to box one of their men. They got up a contest and we had a merry go. Then they asked me to stay to lunch. We French had simplest food and not much of that. But the English—ah, such meat and butter and good things.

Those Tommies said it was as funny to see me eat as fight. They stuffed my pockets with things to eat, so when I returned to my own lines, my comrades said I had grown fat, fighting the English.

But me, I say: "Mads no, mes comrades—it is the English, they have given good things to eat. See, we will have a picnic. Then I take those foods from my pockets and we had the grand picnic."

It was fun, I tell you, and I learned a lot. Those English boxers were not stylish but they could take a lot of punishment and give a lot of it. I learned how to stand up to hard blows.

And from those British I learned another thing. They don't get mad. They box for fun. They try to win, but they try fairly. When it's all over they are friends with you, win or lose. They don't remember you busted them in the eye and keep on being mad.

So now after a fight is over, don't keep on being mad either. I am sorry for the fellow I have beaten. But there are only two in the ring, the other fellow and me. And I don't want Siki to be killed.

So I have to try to lick the other fellow.

It became known today, pending an investigation by the commission of reports of an alleged illegally staged fight card at Albert Lea last Friday night. Gibbons denied any connection with the Albert Lea affair.

Leopards Given Big Scare by Saints; Score is 17 to 6

The East High Leopards were given a real "scare" at Cummings field Monday in their battle with the L. D. S. U. warriors, a spurt in the final play giving the Leopards a 17 to 6 victory. Despite the fact that the Leopards scored their first touchdown in the first five minutes of play, the Saints braced and played the Leopards to a standstill during the balance of the contest.

Roberts tallied the first touchdown and Tauber kicked goal. East High 7, Saints 0.

In the second period Tauber put over a drop kick from the 20-yard line for three additional points for the Leopards.

COAST LEAGUE MAY OFFER TEAM BONUS

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 7.—Directors of the Pacific Coast baseball league meet here November 15 to lay plans for the 1923 season. Representatives will attend from San Francisco, Oakland, Seattle, Vernon, Los Angeles, Portland, Sacramento and Salt Lake.

J. Cal Ewing, one of the owners of the Oakland club, is to put before the directors a proposal to limit each team to 14 players of major or Class AA experience and to six players who have not played in minor leagues before. Ewing says he has enough votes to secure adoption of his plan.

Critics of Ewing's proposal say that adoption of it would make the Coast league Class AA in name only. Those supporting the plan claim it would mean a big saving for the clubs.

The suggestion, it is said, may result in a compromise which would limit the clubs to 18 experienced players and two recruits.

The directors also will take up the question of giving the players on the leading teams a bonus, such as was done this year. Ewing, it is believed, will continue his objections to this move and one dissenting vote will kill the move. Under the plan, each club contributes $2,500 toward the bonus. Ewing thinks that the players are well paid for their services and should give the best that is in them without a financial incentive to urge them on. Every other owner on the circuit wants the bonus continued, it is thought.

TILDEN WILL LOSE END OF HIS FINGER

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 7.—William T. Tilden, II, national tennis champion, will lose the end of the middle finger of his right hand as the result of blood poison which followed a slight cut from a wire back stop received while he was playing at Brighton, N. J., on October 14. The loss is unlikely to handicap his playing.

Dr. William B. Swartley, surgeon at the Germantown hospital, where Tilden has been for about two weeks, said that it was impossible to save the finger down to the first joint, but that he hoped the remainder would heal successfully.

The tip of the nail of the finger already has been removed, but the other portion of the first joint is gangrenous. Dr. Swartley said that he did not expect the infection to pass the first joint and that the remainder of the finger ought not to be stiff if it heals without further complications. He added that he did not think it would interfere with Tilden's playing.

DICK SMITH PUTS GEORGE COOK AWAY

LONDON, Nov. 7.—(Canadian Press).—Dick Smith scored a technical knockout over George Cook, the Australian heavyweight champion, in the fifteenth round of a scheduled 20-round bout at the National Sporting club Monday.

The bout was splendidly contested throughout.

Smith showed excellent ringcraft, causing Cook to miss with his right swings repeatedly. After the tenth round Smith took a decided lead, landing several rights and lefts at long range and right uppercuts in the clinches. The Australian was severely punished. His left eye was almost closed when the towel was thrown into the ring.

Largest rain drops measured are 33 inches in diameter and fall at the rate of from 15 to 25 a second.

AT GRID CAMPS

"Lafayette is the strongest team in the east."

That was the consensus of four of the leading football officials of the country.

During the Ohio State-Michigan game at Columbus, Walters camp said that he regarded Harvard and Lafayette as the two strongest teams in the east and that he rather leaned to the latter.

So good is Lafayette that certain stories are already being passed around as to the status of several stars on the team. Last year the same accusations were made, but nothing definitely proved.

Some idea of Lafayette's great strength can be gleaned from the statistics of the last two seasons played. Neither Bucknell nor Boston College, both of whom were defeated by Lafayette, were able to make a single first down from scrimmage.

When it is taken into consideration that both Bucknell and Boston College are very strong teams, it is an easy matter to realize the strength of the Lafayette line and secondary defense.

Coach Jack Sutherland has certainly been a mighty successful football captain at Lafayette. His pupils have 17 straight wins to their credit and bid fair to finish the season with a clean slate.

In Matt Brennan, Lafayette has one of the biggest and best quarterbacks in captivity. Brennan looks more like a tackle or guard than a quarterback. Aside from being a good field general, he is a fine punter and brilliant at forward passing.

In the backfield, with him are Gavella, Brunner, and Gebhardt. It was feared that Lafayette would miss the line plugging of Elliott, who was one of the most talked of players in the east last year. However, Gebhardt seems to have more than filled the bill at fullback.

It's the line, however, that makes everything possible at Lafayette. The greatest backfield in the country couldn't get going behind a weak line. Lafayette has a wonderful line, led by Captain Schwab, generally picked as an all-America selection last fall.

What a waste of a game for Notre Dame to meet Lafayette. Such a thing is not impossible.

The Grenwell association maintains schools, co-operative stores and hospitals along the Labrador and North Newfoundland coasts for 2,000 miles.

RED BRIGGS TO BATTLE JOHNSON IN SEMI-WINDUP

Popular Pair Will Furnish Fun for Ogdien Fans; New Club to Open Friday

Hardy Downing has completed the details for his first boxing card for Ogdien fans at the Armory next Friday evening. With Al Nelson, the Boise battler and Rudy Baer matched in the six-round main event, the fans are promised six rounds of rapid fire stuff.

Baer and Nelson are both in the best of condition.

Although not listed as a headliner, the semi-windup is sure to be a favorite event among the Ogdien followers of the game. Red Briggs, the hard hitting Salt Lake, and a big favorite in Ogdien, has been matched to step over the four-round route with Billie Johnson of Ogdien.

Briggs and Johnson met on several occasions in the local arena last season and gave the fans a lively session. Briggs has been battling on the coast for several weeks, and is in first class condition.

STAGE REAL BOUT

In one battle between Briggs and Johnson, staged here last season, the two boys substituted for a pair of boxers and furnished four rounds of slam bang action, the event proving more entertaining than the main event.

Lon Richmond or Art Brugger will be pitted against Joe Jackson of Oakland in a four-round mill. Jackson is considered a classy boxer and will get the acid test in this bout. Promoter Downing announced today that he would select either Richmond or Brugger to exchange blows with the coast lad. This will be a four-round mill.

Dutch Barker of Salt Lake and Tom Jones of Logan will meet in a four-round contest. Barker has been bowling "em over fast at Logan, and will meet a first class boy in Jones.

Bill Hardy of Ogdien and Walter Wallace of Boise will step over the four-round route in the principal other four-round bout.

Dick O'Brien and Jimmie Bowers, both of Salt Lake will meet in the curtain raiser.

POPULAR PRICES

Tickets for the opening boxing show will be placed on sale at Hemmway & Mosers' and de Wit Bros' cigar stores Thursday at noon. It was announced today.

The club here will be known as the Manhattan club, just as the Salt Lake club is known and the same policy will prevail. Downing will stage the best bouts obtainable in the intermountain country and will import boys from time to time, to afford the fans a real treat. He said:

"All bouts will begin at 8:30 o'clock sharp. There will be no delays. Every effort to give the fans just what is advertised, substitutions being made only where it is absolutely necessary. Boxers who do not give the fans their best efforts will be removed from the ring and barred from both clubs."

Work on the seating arrangements at the Armory has started and will be completed Wednesday. Remember the bell sounds at 8:30 o'clock Friday.
